

Wednesday, January 17, 2007

Project Management in the Construction Industry Grows in Spain

New tendencies: Last year, the construction work achieved 6.000 millions of Euros in Spain.

Project management is growing quickly in Spain in the Construction industry. AEDIP (Spanish Association of Project Management) composed by 30 consulting firms that give these type of services for Construction industry, celebrated last December 2006 their yearly meeting to close the fiscal year.

Miguel Angel Alvarez Pérez, President of AEDIP opened the meeting session saying that the Project management sector is moving forward in the Construction industry in Spain. He said that the average growth of this sector is close to 15% with a construction work of 6.000 millions of Euros in Spain. The most demanding customers are coming from the financial sector (40%). And the application of the Project Management discipline in the Public sector has been 13% last year.

All the facts indicate that the Government and the Public sector will be the future areas of project management growth in the Construction industry by 2007.